Introduction

This book is the third edition of my book originally published by Paradise Danesh Publication. I have made some changes in this edition. I have added a section under the name of «Critical Thinking and Discussion». This has been with the purpose of making the discussion livelier and more purposeful in the sense of practicing important words. I have also omitted idiom section in that they proved to be boring and unengaging as I got some feedback from the teachers. The vocabulary section remains the same for those who are familiar with two earlier editions of this book. The vocabulary exercises are really challenging and I have not provided any key to add to the challenge. However on request I can make the key available to the teachers but not to the students. Fill in the blank exercises have been hampered with a little bit. Previously there were no options available. Now there are options as not having options created confusions for students. The book can be used for students who intend to pass a general course in university or for English major students who pass reading comprehension. The topics have been selected based on students' interests. An attempt has been made to teach the students some moral lessons when I selected passages on monogamy, how to reduce stress, etc. Comments of all sorts may be addressed to me at salehi789@yahoo.com
