Preface

This book has been written for those who are going to learn English as a second language. For this reason two things that can help learning and speaking English easier, have been distinguished in this book. And these two things are found in poems and verses that are written in rhyme. The first thing that is very important is pronunciation and the second is a state of calling each other. As we know a poem or a verse that is written in rhyme could be learned and memorized better and easier than other writings. When I have been teaching I've got to this experience. As soon as I use one of the sentences or phrases in rhyme the students remember the rest or some of them very quickly. Therefore, we can reach to this result that, it is a state of calling each other that the students can remember them very quickly. Another way for remembering, pronunciation or to pronounce the words correctly is, getting help from rhymes. As all the words are written with phonetics symbols in dictionaries it makes the job very easy for us. For example, When we look up in dictionary for finding the pronunciation of some words like (bird, word) (young, tongue) (room, tomb) (song, long) (here, deer, hear) (hawk, walk) etc. We see that the phonetics of inside of each parenthesis even in different spelling are similar to each other and also the sounds at the end of each word are the same. That is why, we have to pronounce them the same. I have done something like that in this book. All of the sentences and phrases are short and most of them have rhyme with the same phonetic. However, I have attempted to bring words that not only they have rhyme but each sentence or phrase has its meaning separately and also together. They express more information and point out something else. Some of them are very easy, so we can use them for kids or pupils and the others for adults and students. By the way, it's been tried to observe some grammar points that are useful. On the one hand, most of the ordinary people who are going to learn English, first of all they want to get to the extent that they can solve their English language problems in everyday life and be able to chat or to do a short business or shopping. On the other hand, when we call the planet earth as a global village then everybody has to know its language and needs it. Anyway we should find the easiest way for learning an international language. From this viewpoint, in my opinion, the best way for improving your English is, using of poems in rhyme with short sentences and phrases, because, memorizing is easy and also remembering. I hope this book can help you and be partly a way for learning English.
