Preface

Always we are in search of the purest form of originality. It is this originality that distinguishes different cultures and civilizations from each other. The most valuable aspect of cultural, artistic, religious and scientific products follows from their originality. This originality is rooted in the heaven. It is this originality that gives value to the cultural, religious, artistic and scientific works. This valuable difference and variety creates cultural and subjective borders. So, we must respect the original aspects of cultural identity of every nation. However, the innovative aspects of cultural and scientific works should be explored. One of the most important functions of the suggestive assembly presented in this book could be to explore the innovative aspects of the cultural and scientific works of different nations. Evidently, the creators of cultural and scientific works are authors, therefore this suggestive assembly I call the global assembly of authors (GAA), could provide a proper platform to bring together and link the authors from all countries.

Today the world needs a global platform which connects the authors from all countries, since the authors are the representatives of cultural identity of every nation. This global assembly could protect authors from the homogenizing influence of globalization. From a multidisciplinary and interdisciplinary perspective, this global platform could connect the different authors in many different fields. I hope that this book provide adequate motivation to create this global platform.
