Preface

The present book is intended for the students of Private Law. The book provides a platform for the students to engage with the main issues and concerns in the field of Private Law through a series of units revolving around extracts from key readings discussing the main terms and ideas and through practicing numerous exercises and tasks. This material therefore encourages students to reflect on the subject matter in English and to practice learning English through working on the content they are expected, typically, to encounter in their academic reading. This approach is premised on the idea that the integration of specialized content and practicing English will assist students in higher education to comprehend and evaluate discourses relevant to private law.

This book both sharpens the regular comprehension approaches and reinforces critical reading of subject matter through a provision of the essential strategy instruction and vocabulary (including word study) and grammar geared toward the level of students and passages. Further, each unit includes one practical translation tip followed by manageable translation tasks to equip students with translation skill as required of graduate students. In order to make students' learning experience more enjoyable each unit incorporates relevant and interesting idioms accompanied by intriguing illustrations. One significant feature of the book is that all the above-mentioned instructional content is presented and practiced employing individual, pair, and group activities. In addition, a glossary of the key terms of the passages has been provided as a frame of reference for vocabulary study and reinforcement.

The authors acknowledge that the book is truly subject to shortcomings. We are eager to receive valuable comments of students and teachers, which, indeed, will help us to improve the quality of the book. You can reach us at "rezvanireza@gmail.com".
