Preface

This book is written for the students who aspire to pursue their studies in the field of Curriculum Development through the medium of English. In order to meet the language needs of these students, universities professor and current authentic textbooks and relevant articles in the area have been consulted. However, the main emphasis, as expected, has been placed on the language which embodies this content. Since gaining skills in curriculum is necessary for the growth of one's knowledge in a specific field, it should be esteemed and appreciated as a key professional accomplishment.

The intention in the writing of this book has been to help realize the goals of curriculum course. However, the extent to which it has been able to achieve these goals in important ways depends very much on how it is used, and in the case of shortcomings, on all stakeholders' gracious comments, suggestions and criticisms which will gratefully be included in the future editions.
