Preface

This accessible textbook provides a clear and practical step towards elementary to upper-intermediate general English for students at University. Designed for undergraduates with only a basic knowledge of language, it teaches in a step-by-step fashion the logical tenants of grammar and reading comprehension in an attempt to develop the fundamental basics that underpin language learning. Through over thirty grammar review sections and twelve chapters on reading comprehension, students are encouraged to make their own analyses of the structure of English language, based on extensive grammar exercise and reading texts from a variety of contexts. Learning English through practice equips students with the essential skills needed for further developing their language proficiency. Providing a solid foundation in both grammar and reading comprehension, it is set to become the leading text for any introductory general English course, and will be invaluable to all students beginning to study the English language at Universities.

Naser Shaei has been teaching English language for over thirty years in schools and Universities across Iran, having previously held positions at Isfahan University and Salman Farsi University of Kazerun. Yahya Gordanj is Professor in the Department of English language, Salman Farsi University of Kazerun. He is the author of “142 activities for high school students” (2013), and “picking up 570 academic words” (2012). He has also contributed to many journals such as CALL, ESP World, Cogent education, and Asian EFL journal.
