Preface

Concepts and Communication aims to equip students of English as a Foreign Language (EFL) with reading skills and help them interact with the text in the most meaningful and effective way. This course has been designed mainly as General English textbook for non-English university students. It provides them to tackle reading comprehension in a practical, powerful, and lasting way.

In order to teach the book effectively, the teachers should encourage the students to predict what will happen next in the text using presented clues. For achieving this goal, there are also some questions at the beginning of each lesson about the main idea, message or purpose of the text. They can also help learners to connect the content of the text to their prior knowledge or experience.

The new words have been defined before each lesson in order to prepare the students with a comprehensive background.

There are also comprehension exercises to help students use the strategy that skilled readers approach, read, and interpret text.

The goal of Grammar Spot section offers clear and comprehensive explanations of how the target structure is used, and guided exercises lead students into the grammar and help them achieve their communicative ends. As with any skill, achieving this goal takes practice.

Acknowledgements

Grateful appreciation is extended to my dear Master, Dr.Vahdani whose tactful comments and sympathetic advice made this work possible.

I am also indebted to my dear colleague, Ms. Katayoon Mansoori who has made an invaluable contribution to the fulfillment of the book.

It is with pleasure that I express my gratitude to my kind parents whose eager eyes made me love to complete each page of this book.

Last but by no means the least, my heartfelt thanks go to my dear husband whose kind and supportive words have always made me love attempt and achievement.
